

Speech and Rhythm

BROWN, M. and MIKULA-TOTH, A. (1997) Rhythm. In Brown, M. and Mikula-Toth, A. Adult Conductive Education: Cheltenham: Stanley Thornes, pp.45-49. (C7)

BROWN, M. (2002) Conductive Education and the use of rhythmical intention for people with Parkinson's disease. In Kozma, I. and Balogh, E., ed. Conductive Education Occasional Papers, no.8, Budapest: International Pető Institute, pp. 75-80. (Conf C3)

BROWN, M. (2004) Rhythmical intention: a powerful tool for teaching and learning. In International Pető Institute, Abstracts of the 5th World Congress. Budapest: I.P.I., pp.48-49 (C3)

COTTON, E. (1991) Rhythmical intention. Conductive Education Association Journal, no.6, pp.28-29.

DACHENEDER, W. (1995) Rhythmisches Intendieren und kindliches Selbstgespräch im Rahmen. In Staatsinstitut für Schulpädagogik und Bildungsforschung München, Konduktive Förderung; Tagungsbericht zum Schulversuch ... Munich: ISB, pp.49-58. (Conf M2Ger)

DANIELCZYK, M. (2003) Die Rolle der Sprache und des Rhythmus – rhythmisches Intendieren. In Danielczyk, M., Konduktive Förderung bei Erwachsenen. München: Richard Pflaum Verlag, pp.52-55.

DOBSLAFF, A. and DOBSLAFF, O. (1999) Conductive Education and the promotion of speech development. In International Pető Institute, 3rd World Congress on Conductive Education abstracts, Budapest: International Pető Institute, pp.78-79. (Conf C3)

FINK, A. (1999) Las autoafirmaciones rítmicas. In Fink, A. Práctica de la estimulación conductiva según A.Pető. Barcelona: Herder, pp.121-125. (C3)

HÁRI, M. (1981) A ritmikus intendálás mint facilitáló tényező. In Hári, M. Az orthofunkció kialakítása. Budapest: Pető Institute, pp.90-91. (H3)

HÁRI, M. (1981) Rhythmic intention as an assisting factor. In Hári, M. The achievement of orthofunction. Budapest: Pető Institute, pp.73-74. (H3)

HÁRI, M. and Ákos, K. (1988) Rhythmical intention. In Hári, M. and Ákos, K. Conductive Education. London: Routledge, pp.209-211. (C2)

HENDERSON, S. (1977) Background to rhythmic intention. Unpublished paper. (C14)

JERNQVIST, L. (1984) Rhythmical intention - the use of speech in a regulative function. Conductive Education Interest Group Newsletter, no.5, pp.1-12.

JERNQVIST, L. (1986) The use of speech regulation of motor acts in Conductive Education. Hong Kong Physiotherapy Journal, 8, pp.29-33. (C3)

KINNEAR, E. (1985) The rhythm of the day. Conductive Education Interest Group Newsletter, no.9, pp.7-9.

KWAN, C. (2001) The social origin of using speech for self-regulation of motor acts in Conductive Education. In Kozma, I. and Balogh, E., ed. Occasional Papers in Conductive Education, no.7. Budapest: International Pető Institute, pp.89-102.

LÁZÁR, G. (2004) Rhythmical intention: a powerful tool in Conductive Education. Recent Advances in Conductive Education, 3(1), pp.29-32.

LILLEY, M. (1991) Rhythm, songs and rhymes. Conductive Education Association Journal, no.6, pp.30-33.

NANTON, V. (1984) Verbal regulation, Conductive Education and Parkinson's disease. Unpublished paper. (C8)

PENMAN, K. (2000) Does what the people learn in the Parkinson's disease group in Conductive Education generalise to other situations? A look specifically at the role of speech and rhythm. Unpublished dissertation. (C14)

PORTER, G. (1995) My feet are flat. Feet flat? Designing and using rhythm intention... In National Association of Conductive Education, Moving down under; international conference. Parkville: NACE, pp.137-140. (Conf. M2Aust)

REEDER, J. (2001) The regulatory function of speech in the child with cerebral palsy and speech difficulties, with particular reference to rhythmical intention. Unpublished dissertation. (C14)

ROOKE, P. (1983) A cross disciplinary approach to teaching the profoundly retarded multiply handicapped using speech as a regulator of behaviour. Unpublished paper. (C12)

RUSSELL, A. and COTTON, E. (1994) Rhythmic intention. In Russell, A. and Cotton, E., ed. The Peto system and its evolution in Britain. London: Acorn Foundation, pp.90-92. (C3)

SUTTON, A. (1983) A theory of speech regulation: some problems of utilising it in the field of Conductive Education and a possible way forward. Unpublished paper. (G2)

SUTTON, A. (1986) What we can guess. In Cottam, P. and Sutton, A., ed. Conductive Education; a system for overcoming motor disorder. London: Croom Helm, pp.163-170. (C3)

SUTTON, A. and JERNQVIST, L. (1982) Some preliminary notes on a more formalised approach to the speech regulation of motor acts in Conductive Education. Unpublished paper. (G2)

VAN DER HOEK, A., and others (1992) De principes van de methode van de ritmische intentie. In Van der Hoek, A., and others. De Pető-methode. Amsterdam: VU Uitgeverij, pp.48-51. (C3)

YOULDEN, S. (1985) Rhythmical intention. Unpublished paper. (C14)